

Birdwatching

Destination: Iguazú

Description

The jungle of the Iguazú National Park and other adjacent areas shelters over than 400 birds species, nearly half of all the birds present in Argentina.

We depart from the Puerto Iguazú hotels very early in the morning and visit different areas and environments within the Iguazú National Park, endeavouring to find and observe the greatest diversity of bird species possible.

The time spent birdwatching on these regular excursions is of four hours, while the whole outing will last up to an approximate total of five hours. The maximum number of participants is six, the minimum two.

Birding guide, 4WD transportation, mineral water and snack are included.
